

Welcome back, Mattberkley

Request #57974

Correction

Mattberkley
Jun 7, 2:43 PM

<http://www.reuters.com/article/2015/05/28/food-un-asiapac-idUSL3NDYJ2DA20150528>
"The target, one of eight international development goals set by the United Nations in 2000, was to halve the proportion of hungry people around the world by 2015 from 1990 levels."
The eight MDGs were not set by the UN in 2000. They were proposed by Kofi Annan in 2001. Any claim that they were "set by the United Nations" would seem to need evidence from a specific UN resolution.
The only resolution of 2001 referring to Mr Annan's proposals welcomes his report as a "useful guide" for implementing the Millennium Declaration. The 2005 resolution at the leaders' World Summit reaffirmed the Declaration.
A significant number of readers would have had some idea that leaders made pledges at the Millennium Summit.
It is not clear what other event in 2000 readers might think Reuters is referring to.
There is no 1990 baseline - which would be generally easier than the pledge - in the leaders' Declaration.
<http://www.un.org/millenniumdeclaration/ares552e.htm>
I propose that Reuters correct not just any relevant stories but the impression given to the public through misleading references in its output.

This request is currently being processed by our staff

You will receive a notification when the request status is updated by our staff.

Topic

Editorial

CCs

The following people will also be notified when this request is updated:

- Brian Moss
- Csmedia

Comments

Karen Pastor
Thomson Reuters

Hello,

Thank you for contacting Reuters.com support with your comments and feedback. Your comments have been passed on to our editorial team. Please note that due to the huge volume of emails sent to the Editor daily, we may be unable to provide a response. However, all comments are read and taken into consideration, some of which can be viewed on our homepage <http://today.reuters.com/newsi/NewsRoom.aspx>.

We appreciate your feedback and we hope that you continue to use and enjoy the Reuters website.

Kind regards,

The Reuters.com Team

June 8, 2015, 9:35 PM

Mattberkley

On 7 June 2015 at 07:43, Reuters Online Support <support@reuters.zendesk.com> wrote:

Please reply above this line to add your message ##
Ticket #57974: Correction (<https://reuters.zendesk.com/requests/57974>)

Hello,

Thank you for contacting Reuters Online Support. Your request (#57974 (<https://reuters.zendesk.com/requests/57974>)) has been received, and is being reviewed by our support staff.

To view responses to Frequently Asked Questions, visit our Knowledge Base. [link Knowledge Base to <http://reuters.zendesk.com/forums>]

We will get back to you as soon as possible.

Kind regards,
The Reuters.com Team

Your request summary is:

Mattberkley, Jun 7, 2:43 PM:

<http://www.reuters.com/article/2015/05/28/food-un-asiapac-idUSL3NDYJ2DA20150528>
"The target, one of eight international development goals set by the United Nations in 2000, was to halve the proportion of hungry people around the world by 2015 from 1990 levels."

The eight MDGs were not set by the UN in 2000. They were proposed by Kofi Annan in 2001. Any claim that they were "set by the United Nations" would seem to need evidence from a specific UN resolution.

The only resolution of 2001 referring to Mr Annan's proposals welcomes his report as a "useful guide" for implementing the Millennium Declaration. The 2005 resolution at the leaders' World Summit reaffirmed the Declaration.

A significant number of readers would have had some idea that leaders made pledges at the Millennium Summit.

It is not clear what other event in 2000 readers might think Reuters is referring to.

There is no 1990 baseline - which would be generally easier than the pledge - in the leaders' Declaration.

<http://www.un.org/millenniumdeclaration/ares552e.htm>

I propose that Reuters correct not just any relevant stories but the impression given to the public through misleading references in its output.

This email is a service from Reuters Online Support.

Message-Id: J6FPYMGF_5573e826113fb_16eb3f9885acd32c1625d6_sprut

June 23, 2015, 10:29 PM

Mattberkley

I am afraid you have a systemic problem

In this particular case, the "corrected" version is more misleading.

I was not informed of the amendment of 9 June.

I only became aware of it today, 1 July.

"Tue Jun 9, 2015 1:14am EDT
CORRECTED.

(Corrects that Millennium Development Goals are agreed upon by world leaders, ...) "...one of eight international development goals agreed upon by world leaders in 2000, was to halve the proportion of hungry people around the world by 2015 from 1990 levels."
<http://www.reuters.com/article/2015/06/09/food-un-asiapac-idUSL3NDYJ2DA20150609>

As I informed Reuters on 7 June,

"There is no 1990 baseline...in the leaders' Declaration.
<http://www.un.org/millenniumdeclaration/ares552e.htm> .

"We, Heads of State and Government...resolve...by the year 2015...dollar a day...hunger...water...
...to have reduced maternal mortality by three quarters, and under-five child mortality by two thirds, of their current rates"

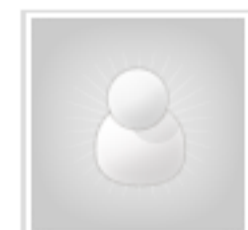

<http://www.un.org/millenniumdeclaration/ares552e.htm>

"The declaration endorsed...halving by the year 2015 the 22 percent of the world's population now existing on less than a dollar a day."

Reuters TV, 8 September 2000

<http://www.itnsource.com/en/shotlist/RTV/2000/09/08/009080017/?s=millennium%20summit>

July 1, 2015, 8:33 PM

Mattberkley

Add a comment to this request

Attach file >

Please consider this request resolved.

Submit